DR. CUMMINGS'S Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla and Dock.

THE articles above named are the principal ingredients of this medicine. With these, others of vegetable origin are combined designed to render them more active, and consequently more immediately effective.

The Dock, or rather a species of it now ranks as a medicinal plant second to none of the vegetable kingdom. With the aid of a distinguished chemist whom the proprietor has employed in the preparation of the compound he has succeeded in overcoming the difficulty of preserving the extract of the root for any considerable length of time.

For many years the proprietor has tested in his practice the efficacy of the principal substances of the compound and is personally satisfied that they possess all the properties which have been ascribed to them. Records in existence of the use of similar articles which have resulted in the production of the compound in the single instance are found to act in harmony and to have some of the qualities which they separately possess.

A larger portion of Sarsaparilla is soluble than has generally been supposed. The extract must be relied on and least liable to decomposition is procured by subjecting the root to the action of the digestive organs, and after undergoing this process, for a long time without any other accelerating agent. None is permitted to be used in the compound that has not been examined by this process and that has been found in a proper preparation.

The Compound is recommended for Scrofula, Erysipelas, Ulcerous affections, Eruptions and Mercurial diseases. Also Rheumatism, Pains arising from secondary complaints, Aching of the bones, Nervousness, Languor, Lowness of spirits, and Gnawing pain in the stomach, Sick Headache, Jaundice, Affections of the Liver, Dyspepsia, Costiveness, Piles, Worms, Colic, Cholera Morbus and Dysentery, Fever and Ague, Chronic Diarrhœa, Obstructions of the Urinary Organs which are frequently the consequence of Gravel, Stone, Strangury, Dropsy, Female Complaints, Loss of Appetite, Sick Stomach, Foul Breath, Impurities of the Blood, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches on the Skin, Pimples on the Face, Fever Sores, Scurvy, Ringworm, Boils, Carbuncles, Inflammation of the Eyes, Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Canker, Mercurial affections, Rheumatism, Pains in the Limbs and Joints

Whig and Courier.

John H. Sherwood.—Publisher.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 15, 1848.

The Whig Candidate, and the Candidate of the Whigs.

The Bath Tribune, if not in form, certainly in fact, truly represents our position when he says that we shall support the Whig candidate for the Presidency But there is a question urging itself upon the Whigs somewhat prior in its claims to this and that is who ought to be the whig candidate—whose name will be most likely to give success—who can be elected In the answer to this question all are interested, and yet there are certain weighty reasons why the Whigs of Maine should be cautious and even modest in urging their preferences and one great reason is, that they have not for a number of years shown sufficient strength to carry the state against the opposition Nevertheless the opinion of the Whigs of Maine may be worth something in the selection of a candidate, and if they see good reason to suppose that by the nomination of a particular candidate they can carry the state for him, it may be their duty to let it be known to their Whig brethren, throughout the Union

Now while we fully believe that if the Whigs of Maine could have the question referred to them, without any contingencies as to what man should fill the Presidential chair, they would by acclamation decide upon Henry Clay, still in settling the question as to what Whig would be most likely to succeed in the election, and secure the vote of Maine, they would decide in favor of General Zachary Taylor This certainly is the prevailing sentiment, so far as we can learn, of the Whigs in this section of the State

The editor of the Portland Advertiser, gives it as his opinion, that while the Whigs of Maine respect and honor Gen Taylor as a military man and an honest man they do not prefer him as a Presidential candidate over a long list of good Whigs and true, whose distinguished services in civil life have demonstrated their fitness for that office

Here we differ in opinion with our friend of the Advertiser If we understand the sentiment of the Whigs, or so far as we do understand their prevailing sentiment, it is this that while they would willingly support for a candidate any one of a long list of Whigs, such as has been referred to they would greatly prefer that Gen Taylor should be presented as their candidate They believe him intelligent and honest —they believe he will call around him the best heads in the country—that he will seek for the peace and honor of the country, the prosperity and happiness of the people and give quiet to the troubled waters of politics Gen Taylor has a hold upon the confidence, and the hearts of the people from the highest ranks to the lowest walks, and all this without any of those fierce animosities and corrod ng prejudices which are entertained against most prominent political men, and in unbounded measure on the part of the Locos, against Mr. Clay

Concert this Evening.

The Citizens Brass Band will give a public concert at Market Hall this evening [This Band is composed of young men who have made great proficiency in the art of music and who execute many pieces in fine style, and with happy effect Their expenses have been onerous and they now make an appeal to the public to sustain them in their efforts and they offer strong inducements in the way of an entertainment Their new uniform, in which they will appear, has been much admired and we advise our citizens to turn in in large numbers and generously sustain the enterprise of maintaining amongst us a good band of musicians, ready for all public occasions

"Bowing Out."

The editor of the Whig was yesterday bowed out of his place as Alderman of the fifth ward which is decidedly Whig Amos W Roberts Esq., was elected over him by sixty majority

(Democrat

Our neighbor of the Democrat seems to have taken seriously to heart our joking warning that he must prepare to be bowed out next year from his snug office of Post Master with its handsome annual income of about two thousand dollars As a relief we can assure him from our experience, referred to above, that the loss of office is not so very distressing and if he does not miss the income more than we shall his case will hardly be one for commiseration or party indignation

☞At a special election yesterday Wm P. Wingate, Esq., was elected Alderman, and Benjamin S Deane, and John F Godfrey common councilmen in the first ward Thomas Semmes, Esq., was also elected common councilman in the fourth ward All the vacancies are now filled, and the city council in both branches entirely Whig with two exceptions the Aldermen from the fifth ward, and one common councilman in the first ward

☞The funeral obsequies of John Quincy Adams, in Boston, were of a highly impressive character The remains were delivered up to the sons of Massachusetts, Mr Adams's native State, by Judge Talfourd on Mr Buckingham, Chairman of the Legislative Committee

The remains were then escorted to Faneuil Hall by a military procession, where they were delivered to the city authorities by Mr Buckingham in a speech of heart touching pathos

Major Quincy of Boston, replied in a speech of singular beauty and force

The Hall was draped in mourning and various mottoes were displayed about it, among them the following —

"This is the last of earth I die content

"John Quincy Adams, aged 81, born a citizen of Massachusetts, died a citizen of the United States"

"John Quincy Adams is the most valuable character we have abroad and the ablest of all our diplomatic corps—George Washington, in 1797

☞The Committee of Congress, who came from Washington with the body of Mr Adams, have received both private and public marks of attention in Boston and Lowell

☞The last funeral interm lonor of John Quincy Adams were performed on Saturday, in Quincy, his native village, in a manner highly appropriate to the solemn occasion

☞Thanks to Bernon and Lee Express for Boston papers received yesterday in advance of the mail, brought by the steamer Admiral

Two American vessels, the Black Hawk and Osceola went ashore near Cape Blanco, and both crews were murdered by the Blancoans The only man spared was a seaman belonging to the Osceola who being an Odd Fellow, was saved by the chief of the murderers he being a member of that fraternity

Troubles in China

An arrival from Canton direct, eleven days later brings information that two English men had been barbarously murdered by the Chinese.

Sir John Davis, Governor of Hong Kong, had arrived at Canton and demanded redress—His demand was refused

A consultation of officers ensued and it was partly concluded to bombard Canton—but the naval force was found to be insufficient It was feared that the difficulties would result in a war

Riots and loss of Life in Baltimore.

There was a serious riot on Monday in Baltimore occasioned by a disturbance between four fire companies At one time with the mass men must have been engaged, with pistols, bricks clubs, and other weapons Anthony Hughes was shot dead, and three other men received balls A large number were seriously wounded Another fire took place after the riot, accompanied by another severe riot

Stephen Girard.

Continued

His fortune at the time of his decease was estimated at, from twelve to fifteen millions of dollars It was however, considerably over estimated.

The following syllabus of the different bequests, legacies, and trusts, as contained in his Will, will show what disposition he made of his property by fortune

To the "Contributors of the Pennsylvania Hospital" he bequeathed the sum of $30,000

To the Pennsylvania Institution for the Deaf and Dumb the sum of $21,000

To the Orphan Asylum of Philadelphia the sum of $10,000

To the Comptrolers of the public schools of the city and county of Philadelphia, the sum of $10,000

To the Mayor, Aldermen, and citizens of Philadelphia $10,000 in trust, the interest to be appropriated for the purchase of fuel, to be distributed amongst the poor white house keepers, and persons keepers of good character residing in the city

To the Society for the relief of poor and distressed masters of ships, their widows and children, the sum of $10 000

To the Grand Lodge of Masons of Pennsylvania $10 000,

To Passyunk Township, in trust, $6,000 for the purpose of building a school for the poor of the children of said township

To his brother Etienne Girard, and his nephew Venture Fenellon, his house and lot of ground near Bordeaux in France

To his brother Etienne Girard, the sum of $5 000 and the like sum of $5,000 to each of his executors

To his niece Victoire Fenellon $7,000

To his sister Ann Gertis Hemphill, $15 000 absolutely, and $30,000 in trust for her children

To his niece Caroline Haslam, $10 000 in trust for her children,

To his niece Henrietta Clark, the sum of $10,000 and her daughter Caroline $30,000

To each captain of a ship or vessel in his employ at the time of his decease $1,500

To each of his indentured apprentices, or servants $500

To the son of his housekeeper $1 000

He charges his real estate in Pennsylvania with the payment of nine annuities to the amount of $1,800

To the city of New Orleans and the city of Philadelphia in common, two hundred and eight thousand acres of land in the State of Louisiana, and to the city of New Orleans the plantation of one thousand acres of land, with about thirty slaves

All the residue and remainder of his real and personal estate, he bequeathed to the "Mayor Aldermen, and citizens of the city of Philadelphia, in trust, for the following purposes

Two Million of dollars of the personal estate, for erecting and furnishing the College buildings "with decent and suitable furniture as well as books and all things needful to carry into effect his "general design"

Five hundred thousand dollars of the personal estate, for the general improvement of the eastern or Delaware front of the city

Three hundred thousand dollars in the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, "for the purpose of internal improvement by canal navigation," the same to be paid into the State treasury as soon as the Legislature enacted the necessary laws to enable the city of Philadelphia to carry into effect the improvements specified in the will—provided however that they were passed within one year after his decease he declares from the remainder of the residue of the estate he directs shall be applied first to the further improvement and maintenance of the college, second, to the general welfare and improvement of the city, to perfect the police system, and 4 to diminish the burdens of taxation

His banking establishment he assigned in trust, to take effect before his decease, its affairs to be closed separate from the general estate, and the balance remaining to be paid over to his executors

Although the heirs had received from Mr Girard, as appears by his will, something like $ 50,000 they were not satisfied with this sum, where there was a prospect, even a cloudy one, of gaining millions They therefore instituted an action to recover certain real estate, valued at about sixty thousand dollars, acquired by letters subsequent to the last republication of his will, to which they claimed title to under the intestate law, on the ground that the estate had not passed by his will, and in this suit they recovered judgment in March 1833

The brother Etienne Girard, and the heirs Francoise Fenellon Vedel, called in the will Victoire Fenellon, then filed a bill on the equity side of the Circuit Court of the U S for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania to October Sessions 1835, against the city of Philadelphia The main ground of the bill was that the trusts for the Orphan College, compounding as it all regard the whole residue of the testator's estate real and personal, after deducting $300 000 given to the commonwealth, and $500,000 to the city, were absolutely void,

1 Because, as to the real estate the city had no capacity to take it by devise

2 That if they had such capacity generally, they could not take in trust for other persons

3 That they could not take either real or personal upon the trusts, which were declared for poor orphan children &c.,—because the objects of charity were altogether indefinite, vague, and uncertain and therefore the trusts were incapable of execution, or of being enforcable at law or in equity, or if vesting at law, or in equity in any existing or possible charitable uses Mr Justice Baldwin dismissed the bill with costs An appeal being taken to the Supreme Court of the United States, the case was argued in January Term 1844 by Mr Webster and Mr Jones for the complainants, and Mr Binney and Mr Sergeant for the city The unanimous opinion of the court in favor of the city of Philadelphia, was delivered by Mr Justice Story

Mr Girard originally appropriated the square of ground between High and Chestnut, and Eleventh and Twelfth streets in the city of Philadelphia, for the purposes of the college, but by a codicil to his will of June 20 1831, he changed his intention and devoted an estate of forty five acres, lying about one and a half miles northwest of the city The ceremonies of laying the corner stone of the main building took place on the 4th of July, 1833, the address being pronounced by Archbishop Beddle, Esq, then President of the Board of Trustees In a cavity made in the stone for this purpose, was deposited a glass vase hermetically sealed, containing a copy of Mr Girard's will; the coins of the United States, one five and ten dollar note of Stephen Girard's Bank bearing his signature, the newspapers of the day etc The building were fully completed in the fall 1847, fourteen years from the commencement During the slow progress of the work the question has been very generally asked "Will Mr Girard College ever be finished" and with some reason too And yet the city of Philadelphia can fully justify the delay, but for circumstances beyond their control, would have finished it several years since The work owing to the costliness of the plan of the main building, which was Mr Girard's own plan, with the exception of the outside finish, was a labor of years, even though the architect had been afforded every facility in the way of funds, workmen, and materials This was not the case and could not be on account of the embarrassed situation of the fund set apart for this purpose The outside finish of the north and rear portico was adopted by the city council—One item of labor, the fitting of a single column, which is two years labor for one man will serve to show the magnitude of the work

The entire cost of the college buildings including the wall surrounding the whole grounds completed will be at $1 000,000 The original appropriation was $2,000,000

The Girard estate, after the payment of all the legacies, was stated in 1830, by the President of the Board of Trustees to be, in general terms, personal estate $1 000 000 —Real Estate $3,500 000 Deducting the charges on the fund, and the $2,000,000 there would be left, or would have been in 1833—there have been sales since—$3,920,000 for the support of the college

Gen. Taylor in the war of 1812.

As every thing relating to Gen Taylor is interesting to the public, we have sought and found his letters, written in 1812, soon after the commencement of the war with England, giving an account of the defence of Fort Harrison They were addressed to General Chas Gratiot Harrison, who was then in command in the North West Z Taylor was then a Captain, but soon after was made a Major by brevet for his gallantry and good conduct in defence of the Fort The reader can hardly fail to see the character-istics of the veteran man, and the details of that act of his early manhood

FORT HARRISON

Letters from Captain Z Taylor, commanding Fort Harrison, Indiana territory, to General Harrison

Fort Harrison, Sept 10

Dear Sir—On Thursday evening the 3d instant after retreat beating, four guns were heard to fire in the direction where two young men (sons of Mr Wm Ramsey here) were making hay, about four hundred yards distance from the fort. I was immediately impressed with an idea that they killed by the Indians, as the Shawnees of Wea had that day informed me that the Prophet's party would wait before for the purpose of commencing hostilities, and that they had been directed to leave this place, which we were about to do I did not think it prudent to send out at that late hours of night to see what had become of them, and their not coming in convinced me that I was right in my conjecture I would until eight o'clock the next morning, when I sent out a corporal with a small party to find them, but could not do without running too much risk of being drawn into an ambuscade He soon returned to inform me, that he had found them both killed, and wished to know my further orders, I put the cart and oxen, had them brought in and buried; they had been shot with two balls, scalped and cut in the most shocking manner Late in the evening of the 4th inst old Joseph Barron and between 30 and 40 Indians arrived from the Prophet's Town, with a white flag, two of whom were about ten years, and the rest were composed of chiefs of the different tribes that compose the Prophet's party A Shawanoe man, that spoke good English, informed me that old Leather Lips intended to speak to me next morning, and try to get something to eat. All retired being I examined the men's arms, and found them all in good order, and completed their cartridges to 16 rounds per man As I had not been able to obtain a guard of more than one private and two non-commissioned officers, for some time past and as each one part of them every other day, from the unwillingness of the company, I had not conceived my force adequate to the defence of this post, should it be vigorously attacked, for some time past As I had just recovered from a very severe attack of the fever, I was not able to be up much through the night After interviewing the guard to be vigilant, and suspend one of the non-commissioned officers, as the sentinels could not see every part of the garrison, to walk around on the inside during the whole night, to prevent the Indians taking any advantage of us providing they had any intention of attacking us, About 11 o clock I was awakened by the firing of one of the sentinels; I sprung up, ran out, and ordered the men to their posts; when my orderly sergeant (who had charge of the upper block house) called out that the Indians had fired the lower block house (which contained the property of the contractor, which was deposited in the lower part, the upper having been assigned to a corporal and ten privates, as an alarm post) The guns had begun to fire pretty smartly from both sides I directed the buckets to be got ready and water brought from the well and the fire extinguished immediately, as it was perceptible at that time, but from debility or some other cause, the men were very slow in executing my orders—the word fire appeared to throw the whole of them into confusion, and by the time they had got the water and broken open the door, the fire had unfortunately communicated to a quantity of whiskey (the stock having leaked several holes through the lower part of the building, after the sad time was closed there, through which they had introduced the fire without being discovered, as the night was very dark) and in spite of every exertion we could make use of, in less than a quarter it extended to the roof and baffled every effort we could make to extinguish it As that block house adjoined the barracks that make part of the fortifications most of the men immediately gave themselves up for lost, and I had the greatest difficulty in getting my orders executed—and, at length from the raging of the fire—and yelling and howling of a great number of Indians—the cries of women and children (a part soldiers and a part settlers wives who had taken shelter in that fort)—and the despondency of so many of the men, which was worse than all—I can assure you that my feelings were very unpleasant—and indeed there were not more than seven fifteen only able to do a great deal the others being either sick or convalescent—and I add to our other misfortunes, two of the strongest men in the fort, and that I had every confidence in, jumped in the pocket and fell to Out my presence of mind did not for a moment forsake me I saw, by throwing off part of the roof that joined the block house that was on fire, and keeping up the fire perfectly well, that we could command every thing around the house, and keep off the Indians at least from the block house, which was the main object of importance at present, as the whole of our provisions, ammunition, and every thing necessary for our defence

Patent Mill Wheels.

Timbey's Patent

Two Vent Cast Iron Water Wheels,

—FOR—

SAW MILLS,

Invented by P. R. Timbey of Cato N. Y.

THE undersigned would invite the attention of the Public to the above named WHEELS, which have been thoroughly tested in Canandaigua with all other powers in use at the present time, and they can confidently recommend them, with the same head and quantity of water applied as propelling and conducting, more Strength and Speed, and giving a more uniform and Steady Motion "in and out of the cut" (and therefore not liable to break cranks,) and will also run longer and Saw more Lumber under a low head than any other Wheel in use.

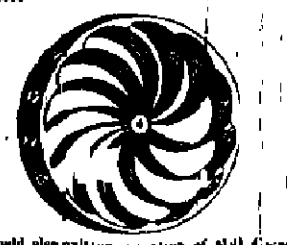
Another advantage which this Wheel has over others is that it is constructed with but Two Vents for the discharge of water which makes the apertures larger and allows the "drift stuff" to escape without filling up the Wheel

Persons wishing to adopt the BEST WHEEL will do well to call and examine before purchasing elsewhere



We would also call the attention of Mill Owners and Operators to

Valentine's Patent

Reversing Centrifugal Water Wheel,

—FOR—

"UPRIGHT SHAFTS,"

WHICH are adapted for driving all kinds of Machinery in Manufacturing establishments or Mills, and are made of different sizes to suit to give any and all of power required and from the reputation these Wheels have acquired by the successful operation of several hundred of them already sold and in use, we feel confident in recommending them as combining more advantages than any other Wheel in use, for ordinary Shafts, now used

As evidence of the merits of this Wheel we would refer to the following extracts from the report of experiments made with the same by ITHAMAR A. BEARD, Esq., Civil Engineer—Lowell, Mass., who is well known as one of the most Scientific and experienced practical Engineers in this country.

This wheel is formed with curved floats the number depending upon the size and use of the Wheel each extending so far around the Wheel that when the water arrives at the jet its pressure is so far expended that it falls very nearly apert from the Wheel The Wheel is inclosed in a cylindrical wooden curb or flume, in which the water stands at its full head, the column being sustained by the stationary plate underneath the Wheel, so that it has no downward pressure upon the Wheel, which stands perfectly free in the column of water, and by this arrangement all the friction on the step and bearing of the Wheel is avoided, and so much of the power saved, which is the old ways mode of operation is wholly lost

"This Wheel is adapted to low as well as high heads of water and will run as well on back water as out of it, preventing the head rises in a freshet as fast as the back water But a Wheel with the jets rightly guaged for a high head will not answer for a low one, and vice versa for as the head increases, the width of the jets should be proportionably decreased, so that the water may not issue to waste, and not gain the best effect to the Wheel.

"In point of power the trials show conclusively that this Wheel is superior to the best constructed Breast Wheels, and it has the advantage of working with good effect in situations where the Breast Wheel would be worthless, is less liable to need repairs, easily accessible when they are needed, costs much less in the outlay, is much more durable, and takes very much less room in a mill or shop — Simplicity of structure, durability of parts, convenience of application and excellence of power are the grand points of recommendation for this Wheel.

ITHAMAR A. BEARD, Civil Engineer"

I hereby certify, that in consequence of repeated and neglected Colds, my lungs became seriously affected, and for a long time I have suffered with violent pain in the breast, obstinate cough and difficult expectoration. The symptoms daily increasing in violence, I had recourse to various remedies with no avail, until I used Thompson's Compound Syrup of Tar, which effected a perfect cure before I had taken three bottles. Blackwood's Edinburgh Magazine.

The above Periodicals are reprinted in New York, immediately on their arrival by the British steamers, in a beautiful clear type, on fine white paper, and are faithful copies of the originals—BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE being an exact fac simile of the Edinburgh edition.

They embrace the views of the three great parties in England—Tory, Whig and Radical—Blackwood' and the 'London Quarterly' are Tory; the 'Edinburgh Review' Whig; and the 'Westminster Review' Radical. The 'North British Review' is more of a religious character, having been originally edited by Dr. Chalmers, and now, since his death, being conducted by his son-in-law, Dr. Hanna, associated with Sir David Brewster. Its literary character is of the very highest order.

Four copies of any or all of the above works will be sent to one address on payment of the regular subscription for three—the fourth copy being gratis.

EARLY COPIES.

A late arrangement with the British publishers of Blackwood's Magazine secures to us early sheets of that work, by which we shall be able to place the entire number in the hands of subscribers before any portion of it can be reprinted in any of the American Journals. For this and other advantages secured to our subscribers, we pay so large a consideration, that we may be compelled to raise the price of the Magazine Therefore we repeat, 'subscribe early while the price is low'
